OUR NEW PRESS.—We are glad to inform our friends and subscribers that our new power press was shipped at Chicago on the 3d inst. The press is one of the Celebrated Chicago Taylor Printing Press company's mark, and by its aid our facilities for working our edition will be greatly increased. With these and other improvements that we hope soon to make, we trust to be able to present to our subscribers and the public a paper that will in all respects be worthy of their generous support.

OREANA SMELTING WORKS.—We are credibly informed that Geo. P. E. Connor, of Utah, has purchased the Oreana Smelting Works. He is making a thorough examination of the mines of Arabia, and will start the works as soon as possible. Mr. Butler, a practical smelter from Salt Lake, is Superintendent of the works.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.—Those able and popular gentlemen, C. W. Kendall, A. C. Ellis, George G. Berry, B. M. Clarke, and W. N. Stone, are rendering good service to the cause of Reform, by stamping the State and addressing the people on the issues before them. Mr. Kendall spoke at Elko yesterday, Mr. Ellis at Aurora, and Mr. Stone at Reno. Mr. Clark will speak at Unionville, Humboldt county, on Saturday, the 19th.

According to the survey of Col. Von Schmidt, who is ascertaining the boundary line between California and Nevada, the whole of Lake Bigler lies in the former State. The Virginia Enterprise says the survey is a fraud.

The folks in Virginia City are rejoicing over the completion of the railway approaches, including the tunnel and depot. The timbering of the tunnel is said to show great mechanical skill.

The San Francisco Chronicle thinks the election of Hartranft is the voice of God. It seems to us more like the voice of Simon Cameron, aided by another voice from the State Prison, that of Yerkes.

The San Francisco Alta thinks "the road a very long one between Chappagna and the White House." It may be so, but Uncle Horace is just the man to make the trip, for all its length.

GREELEY'S GRIEVOUS SIN.

As the day approaches on which all good citizens hope that military rule and corruption will receive its quietus, the venomous abuse which has always characterized the Radicals, has become greatly intensified. The Enterprise publishes with unctious string of abuse which the stage driver Hank Monk is said to have directed against Greeley. Not a little tin trumpet of a Radical sheet in the country but pours forth a torrent of violent invective against a man who in character and ability is as much their superior as the glorious light of Heaven is to the murky shades of the bottomless pit. hen again every stump speaker that streets for an hour before an audience follows suit. Harmless, weak, and vain of course, but still they do their little best or worst, to lower in public estimation a man in whose presence they would be as dumb as a chopping-block, and like Cassius said of Caesar, "walk under his huge legs and peep about to find themselves dishonorable graves." he whole of them, like so many packs of yelping hounds, join in howling chorus against a man as remarkable for honesty and character as for vigor of intellect. What is the reason of all this clamor? Why does every place-holder, from Grant to a tide-waiter, join in this furious outcry? This is the reason, and none other: Horace Greeley refused to take part in the Grant Conspiracy to oppress and rob the people. He made the Republican party; it was the work of his hands and brain, and he loved and fostered it. But when he found that it had become a mere machine in the hands of unscrupulous knaves to oppress, to beggar, nay, to destroy the country; to reduce its people from the condition of freemen to the mere subjects of a military autocracy, Greeley rose superior to party and with a giant's force rent asunder the chains with which it was sought to restrain him.

His intelligence, directed by patriotism and thorough honesty, saw at once through the artful schemes devised by those tricksters, Morton, Cameron, Conkling and others. He detected the villainy of these men and denounced them. He was threatened, cajoled and tempted. Every artifice was used to lure him back into the party traces, but he was not to be intimidated, deceived or bribed. He knew the character of the men who sought his alliance. He knew that the Grant clique, from its head to the Custom House plunderer, Leet, were engaged in a vast conspiracy to retain the reins of power at any cost of money or crime. Knowing this he dispised and spurned them, and was determined to expose, and if possible, punish the scoundrels who had turned the nation's capital into a rendezvous for robbers. This is the crime of Horace Greeley. That is the reason why the Administration and its flunkies spew forth the dirtiest, vilest accusations that are only equalled in their lying malignity by the brazen hardihood of the wretches who utter them. Horace Greeley's offence is that he wishes to put honest men in places of power and trust. He desires to stem the frightful tide of corruption which is poisoning the life and blood of the nation. He wishes to cause the United States to be held together by the gentle but persuasive ties of friendship and regard, instead of being pinned to each by bayonets and rivetted by shackles. This is the sum of Greeley's crime, for which he is derided and hooted by the mercenary crew who are instigating these assaults against him. They laud Grant because he has assisted them in all their schemes of plunder. they execrate Greeley, because they know he will expose their villainy and secure their punishment. But, as we believe in the mercy of the Creator, so we believe that the day of retribution for the worst Administration that ever disgraced the high places of the American people cannot be far off. The scales will some time fall from the eyes of the people, and touched by the liberal spear of truth these wretches will be exposed in all their hideous, disgusting deformity. We believe this as firmly as we believe that the day is not far distant when the honesty of the Governor in the second State in the Union, of the ancient, glorious and proud old Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, will not require the indorsement of a State Prison convict.

KENDALL AND GOODWIN.—By all accounts, the Radical candidate for Congress, C. C. Goodwin, is taking but little from his contest with Kendall. The latter is too heavy for him altogether; and Charley makes but a poor showing. He is a very clever gentleman, but as Lever says in Charles O'Malley, he is evidently not "the man for Galway," nor yet to represent Nevada in Congress. Mr. Kendall will speak in Pioche this day week, and we hope Mr. Goodwin will accompany him. The latter is conferring a positive benefit on his opponent, by serving as a foil to the latter's superior ability.

For the month of September, the Branch Mint at Carson City received 21,848.649 ounces of gold, valued at $406,486.51, and 291,272.044 ounces of silver, valued at $339,378.25, being a total of 313,120.693 ozs, valued at $745,864.76. Total coin and bars executed, valued at $794,224.05.

GRANT'S POSTMASTER GENERAL.

The Congressional Globe is not very interesting reading, but is occasionally useful for reference. Yesterday, turning over the pages of one of the volumes, we came across that report of Postmaster Cresswell in which he indorses and allows the celebrated Chorpennin fraud. The Postmaster, in that document, gives his official sanction to a claim of $440,000, that Congress afterwards declared to be unjust and illegal. While reading Mr. Cresswell's report, we could not help remembering that he had been one of Grant's most active canvassers, going from State to State advocating the cause of his chief, and imploring the people to re-elect him. We also recollected that General Grant's unwearied advocate stood in the very dubious position of a great public officer allowing a claim that was afterwards declared to be fraudulent. In that case, either Mr. Cresswell is guilty of unpardonable malfeasance in office, or else Congress did a great wrong by disallowing a just claim. The evidence is, that the former was the case. Is it not fair to presume that if Mr. Cresswell erred so grossly in one instance, he may have done so in others? Is it not also a fair presumption, that the reason why Mr. Cresswell is so anxious that no change of administration may take place, is to prevent that prying into and sweeping out of dark corners that is sure to obtain on the election of Mr. Greeley? Is it not also fair to presume, that Cresswell and many others' freedom from searching examination, is the thick and thin support of the President? This may not be the case, but it certainly has that appearance.

TRADING.

A number of the Radical papers in this State, are imploring the members of their party not to trade their votes. These folks need not be at all alarmed. So far as we have any knowledge of the matter, the Reformers wish as little as these journals to indulge in swopping a portion of their ticket for any of the Radical candidates. The party of Reform and peace expect to carry the State for Greeley and a sufficient portion of the Legislature to elect a United States Senator. They do not wish any more of Jeonbar Jeems' services. They think he has done mischief enough. They do not desire to give either Sharon or Jones or any other Radical a chance to misrepresent them. They believe that within their own ranks are men of great ability and attainments and of unquestioned honor and propriety that will more worthily represent Nevada in the Councils of the Nation than a man whose great ambition is to fill the dignified position of Court Jester, or the mere creature of monied monopolies. The Reformers of Nevada believe that they can accomplish this worthy purpose by voting solidly for their nominees, and they intend to do it, so the Gratties need not be afraid that any one wants to trade with them. The wares they have to sell reek with corruption and would be dear at any price.

MR. KENDALL.—The San Francisco Post says: "Kendall is a popular man in the sagebrush State. He was elected to Congress when even his friends thought he had no chance to win. He faithfully and efficiently discharged his official duty, and returns to his constituency more popular than when first elected. He is now a candidate for re-election, with a certainty of defeating his opponent. The fact that every Grant organ in the State is hurling hot shot at him is an additional evidence of the man's worth and honesty."

The Sentinel is informed upon reliable authority that a mine, which promises to be very rich, was discovered at Eureka on the 7th instant, about four miles from the town, in a southeasterly direction. The mine was discovered by and located in the name of G. W. Cowles and C. J. Gardner. It is located upon Bald Mountain, near the Hoosac Mine and the Burns and Coffey. The ore, which is of free milling quality, was assayed and went to $2,286 per ton in silver and gold.

A Greeley meeting, in Western New York, a week ago, was the largest ever held in that part of the country. The procession was a mile and a half long, and was preceded by a Chappagna farm house bearing the motto; "This house was not stolen or given to me." Viewed from a Grant stand-point, that motto must be significant.

THE GREAT ACE.—Much curiosity was felt yesterday as to the result of the great trotting race at Sacramento. As will be seen by our telegraphic dispatches Goldsmith Maid won in three straight heats.

J. G. Abbott, who has a band of cattle at or near the base of Stien's Mountain, informs the Humboldt Register that stock men in that region apprehend trouble with the Indians this winter, and are accordingly making preparations to defend themselves.

On the 3d, near Mineral Hill, Jas. Norton, of Elko, was thrown from Woodruff & Ennor's Fast Freight wagon and very badly injured. His recovery is doubtful.

ACQUITTED.—We are informed by Judge Foster that Courtney was acquitted at Virginia, and is now on his way hither.

Why should any good citizen prefer Greeley for President in preference to Grant?

The Gold Hill News makes the above inquiry, which we will answer for ourselves at any rate. We prefer Greeley to Grant: Firstly, because he proposes to unite the country by the ties of mutual good will rather than by the shackles imposed by force. Secondly, because he has resolutely set his face against corruption, no matter from whom or where it arises. No swindling knaves from the Treasury Ring to the most obscure carpet-bagger who is plundering an out of the way district in the South, will be able to carry their nefarious schemes into effect and insult the hard-working masses of the country by flaunting in their faces the riches of which they have been defrauded. Because he is the advocate of real and not make-believe reform in all the departments of the Government. No "Chorpennin" frauds on the Post-office; no "Secor" swindles on the Navy; no payments of interest on the national bonds, for which not a dollar was advanced, will be permitted. No Custom House Ring will be allowed to levy blackmail on the commerce of the country. In short, because Mr. Greeley's election will be the commencement of an era of general reform and the substitution of feelings of harmony and kindness, guided by intelligence, exalted patriotism and untainted honesty, in place of contention and hate kept alive by corruption and the desire for personal aggrandizement. These are the reasons why we prefer Mr. Greeley to Gen. Grant, under whose reign, for it has been nothing else, these grievous errors have arisen to proportions that have justly alarmed the public mind.

The Carson State Register has a droll way of noticing the cards of its advertisers. A Dr. Luce published in the Register an explanatory card, in which he denied the charge of malpractice brought against him by the Carson Appeal. By way of helping the Doctor along the Register calls attention to his explanation in these words:

A CARD.—See, in another column, a card from Dr. Luce, in justification of false accusation.

We noticed at the Railroad depot in Mill City, the other day, says the Humboldt Register, several tons of antimony, marked for Swansea. The ore came from a mine in Bloody Canyon, between Star City and Unionville. It is worth, we are told, $80 per ton in Swansea.

COPE DISTRICT.—A correspondent of the Elko Independent says matters in Cope District are improving. He says the mines look well, and lively times are expected.

Patrick Keyes, of Virginia, has given two silver bricks to the scholars of Gold Hill Catholic School.

M. W. Grand Master Obed. F. Strickland, says the Salt Lake Mining Journal of October 8, delivered a brief but interesting address last night to the Grand Lodge of Utah. He reviewed the birth, rise and growth of Free Masonry in Utah, and predicted a brilliant future for the fraternity. There are three Lodges in Salt Lake City, one in Provo, and another to be established in Corinne. The society is in a most flourishing condition in the Territory. It has a large and magnificent hall, a handsome fund in the treasury, especially in the Relief Fund, and has exerted an immense influence for good in the Territory.

Recently at Virginia City the Odd Fellows laid the foundation of a new hall. Its estimated cost is $50,000.
